-While writing with all the scientific knowledge of a great astronomer, Camille Flammarion in his marvelous story 'Omega: The End of the World," which begins in the April number of The Cosmopolitan magazine, keeps the readers at the highest point of excitement by his vivid description of the alarm and despair excited by the approach of a comet whose collision with the earth had been declared by astronomers inevitable. The description begins at a time when the business of the world has been suspended, and at a mass meeting held in the Institute of France, we hear the discussion of scientists as to the possibility of a second deluge, the drying up of all the surface water of the globe, or the total destruction of human life by cold, together with all the possible phases of death paralleled by the history of the moon. For scientific statement and sensational effect this as good for tree growing as any on the cheracteristic production of French genins is unique, and the reader who reads this marvelous story-and if he begins it he will certainly finish it-will have assimilated without effort, a compact store of scientific knowledge. In this way, apart from its absorbing interest, this remarkable piece of fiction will have a distinct scientific value.

This is the wife of the same Simpson who said in a newspaper article that men sell their honor, women their virtue and children became paupers and criminals in order to eke out a bare existence. This is the wife of the same Simpson who cast his vote against the opening of the Cherokee strip, and who sold out to the gambling option dealers of Wall street, when a bill was before congress that was intended to suppress them. This is the wife of the same Simpson who says he is going to Europe this summer, and will not return to his people in this district for some time. This woman two years ago was not attending balls, at least not inaugural balls, and as for black velvet, point lace and diamonds, they were the embellishments of plutocrats, the emblems of oppression. To the Editor of the WORLD:

"Arbor Day" will soon be at hand and it always justifies an appeal for tree doing something in this direction?

Everybody loves trees and would be glad to have them; and yet, except along the Saline, there is hardly a grove in Trego county. The county has been might have been by this time scores of nice groves, the trees 30 to 40 feet high. Look at the trees on the farm of George Galloway, O. A. Cortright, Sheriff Courtney, Clement Young and several others who might be mentioned! These show what can be done. On one timber claim on Hackberry creek Cottonwood cuttings that were set five years ago are now from Jr. and David Whitmer. fifteen to twenty feet high, and the largest have bodies eighteen inches in circumference. None of these trees are in exceptional locations, nor have they had unusual care. They were planted on low ground where the roots can always find moisture, and they were protected from fire and stock. That tells the whole story. There are hundreds of acres in the county, just farms mentioned, and where success is first president. just as certain. Why can't that ground X. be used?

SALT LAKE, Utah, March 13, 1893. EDITOR WORLD: The word polygamy has become so closely associated with the word Mormon that the outside world has come to look on the word as of interchangeable meaning, or at least to think that the doctrine of plural marriage was the rock upon which Mormonism was built. This, however, is not the case. Polygamy is only one of many doctrines of the church, and the only one on which the entire Mormon church is not united.

The entire Mormon church believe in a personal material God, progression after death, immersion, baptism essential ting it get away twice and not burning to salvation, baptism for the dead, no located hell and no located heaven, that the gospel is restored on earth; that the Bible is not complete and several other points of more or less importance.

Mormon is the name of a prophet who next week. is supposed to have lived over 1000 years ago, and to have written the last series of books which, when finally collected were honored with the name of Mormon, just as the Old Testament might have been honored with the name of Malachi had it early been applied to that collection, or the New Testament that of Revelation. Those who were credulous enough to accept the testimony offered by the finders of this book, that it contained divine revelation, called themselves Mormons, or rather were called that. The happy pair have history of two tribes that left the eastern continent about 600 B. C., and landed sometime after on the western shores of this continent—one about the coast of Teacher's meeting to be held March 25, Chili -the other near Lower California. 1893: According to the narrative the company that landed near Chili was composed of Lehi, his four sons, named Nephi, Laman, Lemeul and Sam, together with one Zorum, a sort of slave, and another family consisting of parents and five Select Reading from "Innocents daughters. Of course the five daughters married the four sons and Zorum. It seems that before leaving Jerusalem Nephi was instructed by God, whoever and whatever it is, to secure certain golden plates that were in the vaults of the secretary of the treasury to the king of that city. A gentleman named Labau was unfortunate enough to hold the responsible position of treasurer at this time. Nephi, in obedience to instruction, appeared before Labau and made a formal demand for the goods. In the altercation that ensued Nephi's sword pierced Labau's heart and Labau's head was carried of as a trophy by Nephi. Nephi then by intimidating the lower on clerks secured the coveted plates. These plates contained the history of the famiies previous to their leaving Jerusalem.

Soon after landing on the continent began to push north and soon to clash, This book of Mormon describes the conflicts of these tribes. At last, somewhere in New York, a great battle was fought, which resulted in totally exterminating the opposing armies.

The last chapter of this work was added by Mormon and hid in the hill of Coand the language used was Hebrew. Other relics were also buried with the through the weary centuries until finally the angel Maroni appeared to Mr. Joseph Smith and revealed to him the location of these valuable manuscripts.

over men and his own scheming ability. It is said that Smith was coarse and ignorant but we can only judge of man's planting. Will you not urge upon the true ability by what he accomplishes, by an elegant supper. Those present readers of the World the importance of and the results of Smith's work show him to bave been a remarkable man.

He founded a religion that in sixty years is nearly as strong numerically as the Presbyterian which computes its age by centuries. The Mormon church toshall, Lou Gleason, C. W. Hatch, Len settled for a dozen years and more. With day has millions in property; hundreds of missionaries proselyting in nearly every city on the globe and its every member is an enthusiast, ready to do and suffer for the creed.

The church was organized April 3, 1830, at Fayette, Seneca county, New York, with only six original members, viz: Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, Samuel H. Smith, Oliver Cawdry, Peter Whitmer, Smith alleged that he received the revelation on polygamy in 1832, but he did not announce it until 1843. He was assassinated in 1844.

The introduction of polygamy caused a rupture in the church that was never heated and to day a section of the church is presided over in the east by a descendent of Joe Smith, but it has no intercourse with the Utah branch which attempted to follow the teachings of its F. H. MONBOE.
